

New United Surgical Website Seeks Outsourcing Partners for Bangladesh Factory

United Surgical launched a website this week tasked with identifying and developing partnerships with firms seeking a superior outsourcing solution for their textile and plastics manufacturing. That solution lies in the nation of Bangladesh.

Solvang, California (PRWEB) April 3, 2009 - United Surgical announces the launch of a new website, ManufactureBD.com. The site's goal is to generate interest and inquiries among U.S. firms in partnering to outsource their textile and plastics manufacturing operations to United Surgical's facility in Dhaka, Bangladesh.

Russell Moir, United Surgical's President, explains, "We established ManufactureBD.com to showcase Bangladesh's superiority as an outsourcing alternative for U.S. firms over China, India, Southeast Asia and other choices. Over the last year, for example, China has endured a thirty-percent rise in its labor rate, a shrinking labor force and numerous highly publicized setbacks in quality control."

"Bangladesh, in contrast, boasts an expanding, vibrant economy, a political, trade and tariff structure and intellectual property protection that's very friendly to Western entry and operation - and a labor rate that's less than one-third of China's."

ManufactureBD.com offers decision makers a comprehensive catalog of resources on its Dig Deeper page, from geographic, climatic and demographic information on Bangladesh to expert industry, governmental and fiscal analyses - even hints on travel, business dress and cross-cultural business practices.

"Looking around at what was available on the Web for westerners looking to do business in Bangladesh, we discovered a real information vacuum. We conceived ManufactureBD.com to be a comprehensive destination for any business owner weighing a relocation of their manufacturing operation to the most advantageous location," says Spencer Stewart, ManufactureBD.com spokesperson. "We're convinced the most advantageous location for textile and plastics manufacturing for the foreseeable future is Bangladesh."
